

Brand architecture

A branded house architecture to drive deep brand understanding and differentiation.

Farther brand will take top billing
(to accrue all value/understanding to the main brand)

Individual advisor brands are sponsored by the main Farther brand

Why?

In the early stages of building audience relationships, it is critical that people clearly understand how we are different, what we stand for, and why we matter to them. At this stage, consistency is essential. To avoid confusion in the market, we should limit variations of the brand and lock-up.

All lines of business will adopt the standard Farther logo, with supporting text used to provide context for specific business lines where needed. As brand equity grows over time, we will have greater flexibility to evolve and diversify our brand expression.

Going forward, all advisors joining Farther will be required to adopt the Farther logo alongside their team name. This ensures advisors benefit from the halo of the Farther brand while reinforcing a unified identity that strengthens the value of the broader Farther family.
